

Environmental Policy

Castings Technology International Ltd provides state of the art technical support, advice, training and consultancy to the cast metals industry worldwide. The company has extensive facilities for casting design, production, laboratory testing and on site monitoring for all associated activities. The company also provides consultancy and training services to the industry on health, safety and environmental issues, including implementation of management systems.

The company recognises that commercial and industrial operations impact on the environment and is committed to minimising the negative effects whenever reasonably practicable. Through an Environmental Management System approach, the company will seek to obtain improved business efficiency, good stakeholder relations and other measurable benefits.

To achieve this objective, the Company will:

- Embark upon a continued improvement process for environmental performance and prevention of pollution.
- Set environmental objectives and targets
- Comply with all relevant current environmental legislation and monitor developments for potential changes.
- Encourage customers in environmentally effective product design.
- Place requirements on outside contractors to conform to the environmental management system.
- Manage energy, materials and water effectively.
- Seek continued improvement of emissions and waste.
- Through established training programmes, encourage employees to act with a responsible attitude towards the environment.
- Monitor the progress of the management system via annual review.

The environmental management programme sets out the organisation, responsibilities and arrangements in place to attain the aims of this policy, the effectiveness of which shall be measured by a system of audits. The company will provide sufficient resources to develop and maintain the Environmental Management System to comply with the requirements of ISO 14001. The procedures operating within the system are mandatory and binding for the entire company and shall be adhered to by all employees.
